At a glance ...

This brochure contains everything you need to know about Bremen. It even tells you which trams take you to each of the city's main attractions and which tours take place where and when. You'll also find information on the opening times for the city's museums and exhibitions, and much more besides ...

Around the ornate town hall, a UNESCO World Heritage site since 2004, you will see much evidence of Bremen's fascinating past. Now more than 1,200 years old, the Free Hanseatic City of Bremen is very well preserved. Numerous historical buildings, streets and squares are testament to the city's colourful history which spans many centuries.

Today's Bremen is a modern federal state consisting of Bremen and Bremerhaven: vibrant cities set in charming countryside. The region has a distinctive atmosphere as well as a wonderful blend of traditional values and a cosmopolitan outlook.

The Bremen Town Musicians

Bremen town hall and the Roland statue – UNESCO World Heritage

The town hall and the Roland statue on market square are on the list of UNESCO World Heritage sites. The importance of the town hall is demonstrated by the distinctive style of its architecture, known as Weser Renaissance, which was prominent in north Germany in the late Renaissance period. Bremen's Roland is one of the oldest and most impressive of the Roland statues which were erected in Germany during the Middle Ages as symbols of liberty and trading rights. Together, they bear testimony to the history of the Free City Republic of Bremen, from the 9th century through to the present day.

North Germany's most beautiful market place

Have a good look around, take your time ...

Shopping in Bremen is a sheer delight because the city centre is so compact, yet manages to have countless boutiques, fashion shops, department stores, restaurants and a strong sense of culture. Glass-covered arcades, historical squares, trendy stores, great offers, fantastic products and interesting sights await you at every turn.

Sögestrasse, Knochenhauerstrasse, Obernstrasse and Hutfilterstrasse are the 'grandes dames' of the shopping centre, streets with exclusive stores and boutiques. Am Wall is a shopping street that runs around the old city centre and is renowned for its sophisticated shops. The shops in Bremen's oldest district, the Schnoor quarter, are also open on Sundays between 11am and 4pm (1 Apr. to 31 Dec.). Alternative shopping at its best: the Ostertor/Steintor quarter, a district notable for its quirky shops. Fedelhören is a street packed with art and antique shops. In the north of the city, head for the maritime quarter of Vegesack and enjoy a leisurely stroll around its pedestrian area.

Around the market square

Böttcherstrasse

Bremen's unofficial high street, this 110 metre-lane has numerous shops in a historical setting.

Bremen Ratskeller

Discover Bremen for yourself ...

Simply follow the markings on the ground ...

The places of interest in the old quarter are linked by markings on the street surface. Simply follow this route and discover the attractions of the old town. Along the way you will find a number of information panels that will help you to get your bearings.

Duration of the tour: approx. 45-60 minutes.

Note: It is possible that parts of the 'silver trail' may be covered up during events in the city centre.

Investigate & discover. In Bremen and Bremerhaven, science and research broke out from the ivory towers of the universities a long time ago. In both cities, museums and science centres encourage visitors to dive into the vast world of research and to embark upon exhilarating expeditions that are fun and informative at the same time. The five worlds of knowledge delight visitors with clever experiments, fascinating life forms and extraordinary exhibits. You're never too young or too old to set off on a journey of discovery.
